

Russian Mennonites who Immigrated to Mexico

Introduction by Glenn H. Penner (Mennonite Heritage Archives, Winnipeg, Canada) (gpenner@uoguelph.ca)

Due to initial difficulties in immigrating to Canada, many Mennonites in the Soviet Union applied to immigrate to Mexico. The story of this movement is described in some detail in chapter 12 of Frank H. Epp's Mennonite Exodus. In the end this attempted settlement was a failure. Many of those who applied to go to Mexico ended up going straight to Canada or were denied exit visas. Nearly all the 124 families that did go to Mexico moved on to Canada as soon as the opportunity presented itself. In 1938 the few remaining families formed the Hoffnungsaus congregation.
