

1920 Chortitza Settlement Census: Neuendorf

State Archive of the Zaporizhzhia Region, Zaporizhzhia, Ukraine Fond R-121, Opis (Inventory) 1, Delo (File) 79

Translated by Jakob Quiring

This is a translation of a census of the Chortitza Colony in South Russia that was compiled in May 1920. The original census is written in Russian. This translation was created by Jakob Quiring of Abbotsford, BC in 2002, with various editors. A few question marks appear in the translation after some names or words that are difficult to read in the original.

The original census is found Fond R-121, Opis (Inventory) 1, Delo (File) 79 in the Zaporizhzhya Archives in Zaporizhzhia, Ukraine. This census is among a collection of 130,000 pages of documents at the Zaporizhzhia Archives that were microfilmed in the 1990s under the direction of the Dr. Harvey Dyck of the University of Toronto. The census is found on Microfilm #55 of the collection. The four institutions that have copies of these microfilms are:

- Mennonite Historical Society of British Columbia, Abbotsford, British Columbia.
- Mennonite Heritage Centre, Winnipeg, Manitoba
- University of Toronto, Toronto, Ontario
- Harvard University, Boston, Massachusetts

There are about 9,300 people listed in the census. Not all of the people listed in the census were Mennonites. Some surnames are clearly Ukrainian and others with surnames such as Klein are probably of non-Mennonite German background. The data for the village of Chortitza in particular contains a lot of non-Mennonites. It appears that about 80% of all the people listed in the entire census are Mennonites. While the frames on the microfilm are not numbered themselves, the pages in the file were numbered at one point. The page numbers are given in the right upper corner of every other frame. All of the frames are readable, but portions of the pages are somewhat faint.

The census includes the birth dates for almost all of the people listed in the census. For the residents of the village of Neuendorf the census gives the birth dates for only the husband and wife of each family and gives only the names of their children without giving their ages or birth dates. In almost all cases the name of the father of the head of each household is also given. Most of the village censuses were also indexed at the time the census was taken so one can locate more readily specific heads of families by reviewing the index for each village. The census includes the village where each family was registered at the time the census was compiled. If the village of residence is not the same location as the village of registration, then the father of the family likely lived in the village where the family was registered at some point in the past.

Note: This translation is not complete and what has been translated has not yet been proof-read.
