The Memrik Mennonite Settlement in Bachmut District, Ekaterinoskv Province (Dnipropetrovsk), Russia (Ukraine), was founded in 1885 by 221 families from the Molotschna Mennonite Settlement. They settled in ten villages: Alexanderhof (Alexandrovka), Bahndorf (Orlov), Ebental (Nikolayevka), Karpovka, Kotlyarevka, Marienort (Kalinovo), Memrik, Michaelsheim (Michailovka), Nordheim (Marinovka), and Waldeck (Lessowka).

According to Cornelius Krahn, who wrote the Memrik article in the Mennonite Encyclopedia, only some 30 families immigrated to Canada in 1923-1927, and very few managed to escape from Russia via Moscow in 1929. In 1930 a great number of the farmers (kulaks) were sent to Siberia. During 1937-1938 some 240 men were exiled, none of whom returned nor was any information obtained about them.

In September 1941 all men between 16 and 65 were sent to Asiatic Russia. On 5 October the remaining population received orders to appear at the Station Zhelanaya, and from here they were also transported eastward. It is likely that they were sent to Kazakhstan. When the German army reached Memrik there were only a few Mennonites left in the villages. What happened to the villages in 1943 when the German army withdrew from Memrik was not known in the 1950s. The few Mennonites they found in Memrik were taken to Germany. Thus only a few of the Memrik Mennonites reached America after World War II.

Two birth registers for the Kalinovo Mennonite congregation of the Memrik Colony were recently obtained from the State Archives of Donetsk Oblast in Ukraine. They consist of:

1) A German register for the years 1902 – 1920, which is found as Fond 450 Opis 1 Delo 1 in the Donetsk Archives. This register has been transcribed/translated by Glenn Penner.

2) A Russian register for the years 1910 – 1923, which is found as Fond 450 Opis 1 Delo 2 in the Donetsk Archives. This register has been translated from Russian into English by Tatiana Drozdova.

Although these registers contain many of the same births the information is often different and complimentary. For example many of the entries in the German register have the ages of the parents, which the Russian register does not. Similarly the Russian register usually references the corresponding page in the family register (which has so far not been located) while the German register usually does not.

The originals occasionally have entries which are too faint to properly read, particularly in the Russian register. The German register has many Russian and Ukrainian locations written in Cyrillic which were occasionally unreadable.

Any questions should be directed to Glenn Penner at the email address above.

The data in the birth registers was entered chronologically. For research purposes, the data has been sorted by father's surname and given name, along with mother's surname and give name, so that the information is organized by family.
